VERIFIED SCHEDULING OF RECURRENT PROGRAM RECORDING OPERATIONS

ABSTRACT

[0064]   A user interface and software for enabling or performing functions on programs contained within program scheduling information.   The user selects a program from the program scheduling information, and the system determines if a function can be enabled for the selected program by determining the differences between the recurring periods of the selected program and the function.